Lauren Loofboro leads Home Again Living's Cambridge community and brings 20 years of nursing experience as a licensed practical nurse. She began her career at a local family practice clinic, where she spent a decade caring for patients, including older adults. Lauren studied nursing at Madison Area Technical College. At Home Again, she works with residents, families, and care providers to help coordinate individual care and support the Cambridge team. Outside work, she enjoys family time and cheering on the Packers and Badgers.

Kayla True brings eight years of care and operations experience at Home Again Living. Her career began in 2018, when she joined the team as a certified nursing assistant while still in high school. She later studied healthcare administration at Winona State University and returned to Home Again as an intern. After graduation, Kayla worked as an operations specialist and assistant community director before moving into her current role. Her path through direct care and operations shapes how she supports Cambridge residents, families, and staff. Outside work, she enjoys travel, the outdoors, and time with her family and dog, Hank.

Again

Georgia has dedicated the past nine years to a career in healthcare, including the last four years as a valued member of the Home Again team. Her experience has strengthened her passion for helping others and has provided many meaningful opportunities to learn and grow. Outside of work, Georgia's greatest joy is spending time with her husband and their little boy. She cherishes time with family and friends, whether heading up north for four-wheeling adventures or enjoying quiet, relaxing evenings at home. For Georgia, it's the simple moments spent with the people she loves that mean the most.

Brooke LaChance guides clinical care across Home Again Living's communities. A nurse practitioner with 25 years of nursing experience in geriatric, pulmonary, critical care, and transplant medicine, she brings a broad clinical perspective to resident care and team leadership. Alongside her Home Again role, Brooke continues to work as a nurse practitioner with the pulmonary clinic at UW Hospital. Earlier in her career, she worked as a registered nurse in the UW Hospital intensive care unit. Brooke earned a Bachelor of Science in Nursing from Linfield College and a master's degree in nursing from the University of Wisconsin-Madison. At Home Again, she supports care that responds to each resident's needs and goals.

Danielle Beach supports medical teams across Home Again Living's communities. She began caring for older adults as a certified nursing assistant in high school and later earned an associate degree in nursing. Her four years of nursing experience include medical-surgical and critical care settings. As a float medical manager, Danielle brings that range of experience to the communities she serves and works with colleagues to provide attentive, compassionate support to residents. Outside work, she enjoys time with family, friends, and her chocolate lab.

Shanna Phillips supports residents, families, and staff across Home Again Living's communities. She brings 25 years of professional experience, including clinic manager and director roles that built her skills in team leadership, operations, and staff development. She also studied psychology at the University of Wisconsin-La Crosse. In her float role, Shanna helps community teams respond to day-to-day needs and maintain a welcoming experience for residents and families. Outside work, she enjoys gardening, scrapbooking, paddleboarding, and time with her family.
